Trip participants must be able to climb and descend steep stairs without handrails, when encountered. Trip participants must be able to walk approximately three miles over the course of a day, sometimes on rocky, uneven dirt and stand for extended periods of time at historic sites - sometimes in the heat of the day. In general, trip participants should be able to keep pace with the group. There are some days with as much as 6 hours drive.

Detailed Itinerary will be sent upon acceptance into the trip.

Traveling in Mongolia as a developing country requires a sense of humor and patience. New roads and bridges are being built every year but the paved road system is still limited in the countryside. You may experience flight delays and find road conditions bumpy and dusty. But the experience of traveling in Mongolia will far exceed some personal compromises in comfort.
